'Rails in the Garden'

Model-railroad fans will get a chance to chug-chug on over to the Tucson Garden Railway Society's fifth annual "Rails in the Garden" tour Saturday and next Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Eight garden railways will be on display, ranging in size from small backyard affairs to the 4,000-square-foot Eagle Mountain Railway. Among the items not to be missed on this tour: trolleys, waterfalls, bridges and a complete frontier town, including a gold mine, American Indian village and a circus.

Displays are all in Midtown or the East Side, with Alvernon Way and East Broadway as the westernmost point. Maps are given with the tickets, which are $5 for individuals, $10 for a family of four (two adults, two minor children).

Tickets may be purchased at Barbeques Galore, 5616 E. Broadway and 5068 N. Oracle Road.

Elevated Layout

By Dick Izen

Ibby Ulmer has told you about the progress being made on the crawl through locomotive and the work day at Norm and Ibby's. I want to update you about another aspect of the Tucson Children's' Museum project, the elevated train loop.

As you may know the train gallery room currently has a traveling exhibit and we can only work in the room on Mondays when the museum is closed. Nick Buchholz and I had the acrylic cut for the roadbed and glued the supports and side walls to stiffen the pieces.

Our first workday was November 3, when Chuck Taylor, Willis Fagg, Nick and I placed the two large triangular pieces on the south wall. These pieces will support the curves and are large enough to support some scenery. We also helped Glenn Mitchell load the box in which the museum's TV is mounted into his truck. He took it home to install the control panel and the momentum circuit.

November 10th saw all five of us back at the museum (Glenn brought back the installed electronics and stayed to help our crew.) The first order of business was mounting the 36 feet of backdrops that will form the scenery on the west, south and part of the east walls. We are using 24 feet of photo mural depicting the rolling Arizona desert hill around Wickenburg. The other 12 feet depict the Union Pacific yard in Salt Lake City (we couldn't find a photo mural with an Arizona yard).

The first step was trimming the photo murals and cutting them to length to fit the walls.

Chuck Taylor trims one of the Wickenburg backdrops.

Next we masked the wall above and below the backdrop's position. We used spray glue both on the wall and the back of the backdrop. Then the backdrops were carefully affixed to the walls.

Once the Wickenburg murals were up we moved to the Union Pacific yard. It's hard to see in the small picture below but the U. P. shield emblem is prominent atop the three story building. The yellow points in the bottom of the pictures are part of the traveling exhibit that we had moved away from the wall.

U. P. 's Salt Lake yard installed on the east and south walls.

With the backdrops in place we completed the roadbed on the south wall and used three false front buildings to transition between the desert hill and the yard. Some green paint over the buildings will help complete the transition between the scenes.

Once done with the south wall we installed three sections of roadbed along the west wall under the desert mural. Next Monday (the 17th) we plan to complete the west wall and work along the east wall. If there is sufficient time we will also begin to cut into the north wall for our tunnel portals.

Overall, I think the crew is pleased with the progress we are making and expect to be ready for track and wiring soon.

Who to call: 326-9686, Ext. 10.

The particulars: Nestled among the Tucson Botanical Garden's wildflowers, there's a miniature train sure to capture the imagination.

As it travels through the garden, the train passes a farm, goes around rocks and through tunnels, finally arriving at a little town and the railway station.

TBG's train and town are the result of a partnership with the Tucson Garden Railway Society, begun several years ago.

Now, thanks to help and donations from the railway society and the work of TBG volunteer Thorne Pierce, TBG has its own garden railroad and town.

Call ahead to make certain the train is running.

Tucson, AZ – Southern Arizona VA Health Care System (SAVAHCS) will be hosting the Tucson Garden Railway Society during the holiday season. Numerous operational train displays will be set-up in the R.E. Lindsey Jr. Auditorium building number four for patients, employees, volunteers, families, children, and especially the young at heart. The train show will feature running model trains spanning from America's earliest model operational trains to the modern trains running on our Nation's tracks today. The train show will be held Tuesday and Wednesday – December 30 and 31, 2008. The times for the train show will be from 9:00 a.m. through 4:00 p.m. December 30 and from 9:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. on Wednesday - December 31, 2008.

Those attending this prize-winning train show will be treated to beautiful and dynamic scenery layout featuring, mountain ranges, building, roads, and other scenic effects. Member of the Tucson Garden Railroad Society will be on hand to explain the history of each train display, how the displays were put together, and how to learn more about the society.

"We truly appreciate the Tucson Garden Railway Society, offering this grand train show for the fifth year in a row for all our patients and the local community" stated Jonathan H. Gardner, MPA, FACHE, Director for the Southern Arizona VA Health Care System. "This show should add a smile to all those who see it first hand", Gardner added.

There is no cost for this train show and everyone in the community is invited. Visitors can enter through the Veterans Blvd. Gate off 3601 S. Sixth Avenue, proceed east and look for parking lot "Q" for their parking requirements. The R.E. Lindsey Jr. Auditorium is in building 4 at the VA Medical Center.

For additional information on the train display contact Willis Fagg at (520) 760-0147. Media interested in covering this event are asked to contact Pepe Mendoza at the SAVAHCS Public Affairs Office at (520) 629-1819.

EVENT MARKS ARRIVAL OF FIRST TRAIN HERE IN 1880

Tucson Mayor Bob Walkup, left, and Kenneth Karrels have the historical look as they celebrate the 129th year of train service here. Friday's event Downtown was at the Southern Arizona Transportation Museum. The arrival of the train March 20, 1880, signaled big change for the area.

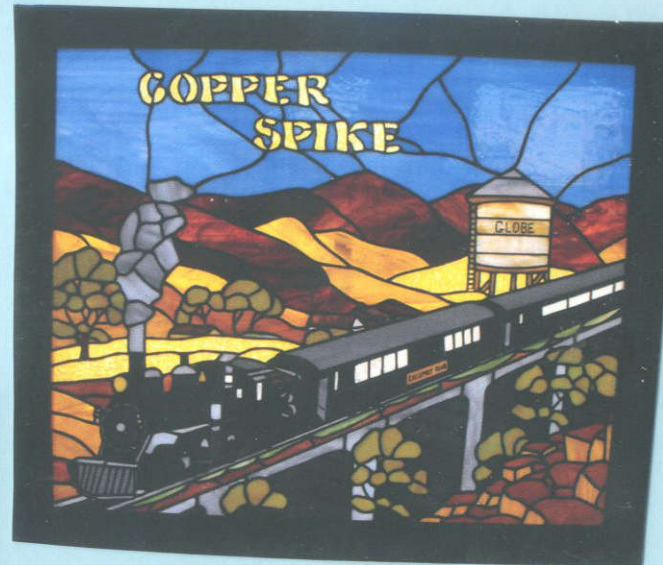

Amphi district students, from left, Carmina Garcia, Angel Perez, Ramzy Liggett and Jessy Osmer were on a field trip to the celebration.

TGRS HOLIDAY PARTY

ST. MARKS EARLY CHILDHOOD CENTER

Nick Buchholz of the Tucson Garden Railway Society seems to be a giant among little villagers during Monday's preparations for the show.

Model trains are on track for exhibit at VA

Members of the Tucson Garden Railway Society routinely put together mass transit on a small scale as part of their efforts to teach the public about the history of trains and, simultaneously, to interest people in model railroading.

The group displays railroad layouts at schools and other sites in the Tucson area, assembling rail tableaux of yesteryear and modern times.

The free show at the Veterans Affairs hospital, 3601 S. Sixth Ave., runs today from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. It's in the R.E. Lindsey Jr. Auditorium.
